Below is the question for you.

==
For more discussion, we're joined by Carunia Mulya Firdausy, Professor at the Economics University of Tarumanagara in Jakarta. Welcome to our show.

Q1: Chinese Vice Premier He Lifeng has called for multilateralism, free trade and dialogue, pledging to open China's market. Against current complex geopolitical and geo-economic backdrop, how significance is his message?

Q2: He also highlighted global cooperation, saying that making the pie of cooperation bigger together is more important than fighting for the pie. As Asian nations continue to expand market and deepen industrial chain integration, how do you assess the potential of a more integrated Asian market to global growth?
